BOILING DOWN ESTABLISHMENT.

TO SETTLERS AT THE CLARENCE AND RICHMOND RIVERS, NEW ENGLAND, DARLING DOWNS, AND THE ADJACENT DISTRICTS.

THE undersigned, who for some years was foreman to Mr. Armstrong, and had the complete management of the Boiling Down Establishment on the Parramatta Road, has the pleasure to inform the settlers of the above districts, that he has made arrangements with Mr. Clark Irving for the use of the Steam Boiling Down Establishment which that gentleman is now erecting at his station on the Richmond River; and as it will include all the modern improvements, more particularly the prevention of tallow being burnt, he has great confidence in stating that the tallow about to be produced will be equal, if not superior, to any yet seen in the colony; and as he is depending upon quantity for his profit, his terms will be very moderate.

For the security of parties sending cattle, accommodation will be given to their Overseer or any person they may appoint to overlook the process, and see the tallow packed.

He has also the pleasure to state, that if required, he has made arrangements to make advances immediately on receiving the cattle, provided the tallow is consigned to his agents in Sydney.

THE EARL OF ALDBOROUGH CURED BY HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.

THE EARL OF ALDBOROUGH CURED OF A LIVER AND STOMACH COMPLAINT.

Extract of a Letter from the Earl of Aldborough, dated Villa Messina, Leghorn, 21st February 1845.

To Professor Holloway.

SIR,—Various circumstances prevented the possibility of my thanking you before this time for your politeness in sending me your Pills as you did. I now take this opportunity of sending you an order for the amount, and, at the same time, to add that your Pills have effected a cure of a disorder in my Liver and Stomach, which all the most eminent of the Faculty at home, and all over the Continent, had not been able to effect; nay, not even the waters of Carlsbad and Marienbad. I wish to have another Box and a Pot of the Ointment, in case any of my family should ever require either.—Your most obliged and obedient servant,

(Signed) ALDBOROUGH.

A WONDERFUL CURE OF DROPSY OF FIVE YEARS' STANDING.

Copy of a Letter from Mr. Thomas Taylor, Chemist, Stockton, Durham, 17th April, 1845.

To Professor Holloway.

SIR,—I think it my duty to inform you that Mrs. Clough, wife of Mr. John Clough, a respectable former of Acklam, within four miles of this place, had been suffering from dropsy for five years, and had had the best medical advice without receiving any relief. Hearing of your Pills and Ointment, she used them with such surprising benefit, that in fact, she has now given them up, being so well, and quite able to attend to her household duties as formerly, which she never expected to do again. I had almost forgotten to state that she was given up by the Faculty as incurable. When she used to get up in the morning it was impossible to discover a feature in her face, being in such a fearful state. This cure is entirely by the use of your Medicines.

I am, Sir, &c.,
(Signed) THOMAS TAYLOR.

A CURE OF INDIGESTION AND CONSTIPATION OF THE BOWELS.

Copy of a Letter from G. R. Wythen Baxter, Esq., author of the "Book of the Bastiles," &c., &c. The Brynn, near Newtown, Montgomeryshire, North Wales, March 3, 1845.

To Professor Holloway.

SIR,—I consider it my duty to inform you that your pills, a few boxes of which I purchased at Mr. Moore's, Druggist, of Newtown, have cured me of constant Indigestion and Constipation of the Bowels, which application to literary pursuits had long entailed upon me. I should strongly recommend authors, and studiously disposed persons generally, to use your valuable Pills. You have my permission to publish this note if you wish to do so.

I am, Sir, your most obedient servant,
(Signed) G. R. WYTHEN BAXTER.

A CURE OF ASTHMA AND SHORTNESS OF BREATH.

Extract of a Letter from the Rev. David Williams, Resident Wesleyan Minister at Beaumaris, Island of Anglesea, North Wales, January, 14th, 1845.

To Professor Holloway.

SIR,—The pills which I requested you to send me were for a poor man of the name of Hugh Davis, who, before he took them, was almost unable to walk for want of breath! and had only taken them a few days when he appeared quite another man; his breath is now easy and natural, and he is increasing daily in strength.

(Signed) DAVID WILLIAMS.

N.B.—These extraordinary Pills will cure any case of Asthma or Shortness of Breath however long standing or distressing the case may be, even if the patient be unable to lie down in bed through fear of being choked with cough and phlegm.

VICTORIA HOUSE.

259, PITT-STREET.

IN retiring from the above business, JOSEPH FARMER tenders to all parties his grateful thanks for the very kind and liberal support afforded him, during the whole time he has been engaged therein, and most respectfully solicits a continuance of the same on behalf of

who have been engaged with him for the last six years, the former as buyer in the London market, and the latter confidentially in Sydney, and to whom he has this day sold the whole of his stock and the good-will of his business in Sydney, and at his branch establishment, Parramatta.

PRICE AND FAVENC

Respectfully announce that they have this day purchased of Mr. Joseph Farmer his extensive and varied assortment of silks, shawls, hosiery, drapery, &c., &c., at a great sacrifice upon the prime cost, which will enable them to offer the whole of this large stock to the public at a considerable reduction upon the usual charges.

In addition to the above attraction, Price and Favenc have much pleasure in being enabled to notify that they are now engaged in opening and marking one of the largest, richest, newest, and cheapest shipments of goods ever received in the colony, carefully selected and bought for cash in the London market by Mr. Price, and just landed from the Soubahdar, the whole of which will be ready for inspection by Monday next, the 1st March.

Soliciting for themselves, the same kind support which has been experienced by their predecessor, Price and Favenc beg to say that their business will be conducted upon the improved system of never deviating from the price marked—every customer will receive the most respectful attention, and one of the partners will always be in attendance.

Price and Favenc have much pleasure in making known that their establishment will continue to derive all the advantage Mr. Farmer's intimate knowledge of the market must give in the selection of goods, as that gentleman is about proceeding to England, for the purpose of purchasing for cash in the London, Manchester, and Paris markets, regular monthly shipments.

SHIPS' MAILS.

Mails will be closed at the Post Office as follow:—

FOR ADELAIDE, SWAN RIVER, MAURITIUS, AND THE CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.—By the Flibberty, this evening, at 6.

FOR ENGLAND.—By the Sir George Seymour, P.O.P., on Monday, at eleven; and the Clara, on the 6th proximo.

FOR HONGKONG.—By the Daniel Watson, on the 6th proximo.

FOR MELBOURNE AND LAUNCESTON.—By the Shamrock, steamer, on Monday next.

FOR ADELAIDE.—By the Berenice, on Tuesday evening, at 6.

The cargo of the Maitland consists of 40 bales wool, 20 bags maize meal, 22 cheeses, and 17 hides. She has brought up the master and two of the crew of the cutter Isabella, which had been lost on the bar of the M'Leay, in endeavouring to come out.

The whaling ship James Stuart is about to go on the Patent Slip to be repaired. The new brig Eleanor Palmer, lately launched from the Patent Slip, is now fitted out ready for sea. Her cabin accommodations are superior, and being built to carry a good cargo, it is expected that she will soon meet with a purchaser, as she is for sale.

The Medway is expected to sail for London in the course of the day, and the Clara in all next week. The other vessels on the berth are progressing rapidly. The Cornubia will tow the Sir George Seymour to sea at 12 o'clock on Monday.

The barques Elizabeth and Henry and Lydford, and the new ship Harpley, were advertised for London, in the Launceston papers of the 13th instant.

The Fifeshire sailed from the Downs for Sydney on the 21st October, and has been out 129 days. The Euphrates sailed on the 24th October, and has been out 126 days. The Bermondsey, (P.O.P.), sailed on the 5th November, and has been out 114 days: all those vessels may be considered overdue, particularly the first two. The Sultana would probably sail about the 18th November, and if she did do so she has been out 100 days, and as she generally makes quick passages she may be daily expected.

H.M. Ships Bramble and Castlereagh are daily expected in Sydney from the surveying expedition to the northward.

The Alfred, Napper, sailed from Hongkong for Sydney, December 5.

"Sworn to no master, of no sect am I."

THE PUBLIC ROADS.

IN charging the Legislative Council, yesterday, with a flagrant dereliction of duty on the Road question, we gave them the credit of having made one feeble movement at the eleventh hour. The credit is very small, but such as it is let them have it. In their fourth session, they for the first time referred the question to a Select Committee. What amount of labour, relative and positive, that Committee got through—what light they threw upon the subject—and to what beneficial results their Report pointed, are matters into which we now propose to make some inquiry.

As indicating the quantum of zeal and assiduity with which certain members of the Legislature enter upon the duties committed to them, in proportion as the object is or is not a special favourite in their eyes, we shall make a few comparisons between this Committee and another. Good roads are on all hands admitted to be a grand desideratum; but it may be that even capital roads are less to be desired than a plenteous influx of convict labour. Pleasant travelling is a great luxury; but it may be that cheap wool-growing is a luxury still more exquisite.

The Committees we have to compare are, therefore, the one on Roads and Bridges, and the one on the Renewal of Transportation. Both of them had the same honorable member for Chairman—Mr. W. C. WENTWORTH; and the features to be compared are such as denote the relative importance attached by that honorable and learned gentleman to good roads and to good convicts. The quantity of labour performed by the respective Committees, and the space of time within which it was despatched, are the features referred to.

The Roads and Bridges Committee was appointed on the 22nd May, 1846; the Transportation Committee on the 13th October following. Each was instructed to "enquire and report." The former was required to report within "two months," the latter within a "fortnight."

The Roads Committee sat three days, and examined six witnesses; the Transportation Committee sat six days, and examined sixteen witnesses.

The spring session closed on the 12th June; so that the labours of the first-named Committee may be said to have been interrupted by a cause for which they were not accountable. But then the autumn session commenced on the 8th September, and continued until the 31st October; so that there was ample opportunity for getting the Committee re-appointed, and for bringing its enquiries to a business-like conclusion. But this opportunity was utterly neglected; and nothing more was done with the important question of roads and bridges, until the 27th October, when it was ordered, on the motion of Mr. WENTWORTH, that the information collected by the Committee should be printed.

The work of the Transportation Committee was prosecuted with such determined vigour, that they sat for six successive days, an intervening Sunday excepted; and in eighteen days from the date of their appointment, they brought up their Report.

Then look at the nature and bulk of their respective Reports. That of the Roads Committee, after an interval of more than five months, had grown to forty pages; that of the Transportation Committee, within the brief space of less than three weeks, had shot out into just twice that magnitude, or eighty pages. The latter, along with its Minutes of Evidence and Appendices, contains an elaborate exposition of the Committee's own views and conclusions; the former contains no exposition at all. In other words, the Transportation Committee brought up a Report, as well as Evidence; the Roads Committee brought up Evidence, but no Report.

This last difference is the more remarkable, inasmuch as it was resolved by the Transportation Committee, at their first meeting, that "it was not expedient to take any evidence at that late period of the Session;" whilst the Roads Committee made no such disclaimer, and had no such pretext for so doing. And yet the disclaiming Committee proceeded forthwith to examine, as we have said, no less than sixteen witnesses, whose printed evidence occupies fifty-two pages; whilst the other examined only half a dozen witnesses, whose evidence is comprised within twenty pages.

Now, what can be inferred from this comparison, but that good roads and bridges, which all classes of the community earnestly desire, are, in Mr. WENTWORTH's estimation, inferior in importance to the bringing back of convicts, which all classes of the community have openly reprobated? In a cause upon which the public has set its heart, the honorable member has been cold and indolent; in a cause which the public loathe and abhors, he has been enthusiastic and indefatigable. To say nothing of his error of judgment, in thus misapprehending the interests of his country, we must, as members of his immediate constituency, express our regret, and indeed our astonishment, that a gentleman who has always professed so great a deference for public opinion, should in these two instances, and especially in the latter, have set that opinion at open defiance.*

* We shall embrace an early opportunity of going somewhat minutely into the Minutes of Evidence taken before the Select Committee on Roads and Bridges.

REVIEW.

POETICAL FRAGMENTS. By A. C. Stonor, Barrister-at-law, Hobart Town.

WE have to acknowledge the receipt of a small volume of poetry, bearing the above title. The poems consist chiefly of translations from the minor classics, two-thirds of the book being devoted to a translation of the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd books of the Pharsalia of Lucan. In his preface, the author informs us that the miscellaneous poems were in great measure the productions of an early age, and that he is induced to give the translations to the world in order that the great impetus lately given to classical literature in Van Diemen's Land by the establishment of the new educational institutions in that colony, may be increased, by any efforts to attract the attention of the rising generation of Tasmania to some of the less trodden paths of the poetical literature of Greece and Rome. The motive is a high and laudable one, and the volume on that account claims an indulgence at our hands which we should not otherwise be disposed to give it. Mr. Stonor (we know not whether to say we fear or we hope,) has not the gift of poetry. The vigour of the original author is lost in the laboured versification in which his thoughts are conveyed by the translator. Smoothness of versification, and harmony of rhyme, are the adjuncts, not the essentials, of poetry. These, to a certain extent, Mr. Stonor's poems possess; but the power over thought, the grandeur of conception, and above all, the clear, concise, nervous clothing of those conceptions in language at once simple, intelligible, and impressive, are wanting. There are passages in the Pharsalia which would be creditable to a young student as his prize effort, but nothing, as a whole, to claim the attention of the cultivated reader, and but little, we fear, to attract our colonial youth to the fields of classic literature.

The miscellaneous poems are few and feeble, and are all more or less imitations; and are, in constantly recurring passages, too obscure to be intelligible. We cannot predict a happy fate for Mr. Stonor's volume.

THE GOVERNOR.—His Excellency the Governor will proceed to Port Macquarie on Monday evening, by the Maitland. We are glad to be able to announce that Lady Mary Fitz Roy is so far recovered that she will be able to accompany his Excellency.

NEW INSOLVENT.—The following estate was sequestrated yesterday afternoon:—Michael Napthaly, of George-street South, late a licensed victualler. The schedule disclosed—Debts, £550; assets—personal property, £25; outstanding debts, £51 14s. 5d.; balance deficiency, £478 5s. 7d.—John Walker, Official Assignee.

STEALING FROM A MASTER.—Between eight and nine o'clock on Thursday evening, Mr. Hugh M'Laughlan, of the Seven Stars public-house, Castlereagh-street, having discovered that his hired servant, Samuel Robinson, lately free, was leaving his premises with a bundle by the back door leading to Elizabeth-street, followed him and got him lodged in St. James's watch-house, when the bundle he was carrying being examined, was discovered to contain about £18 worth of property, belonging to several gentlemen who had entrusted the same to the care of Mr. M'Laughlan. Robinson was brought before the Police Court yesterday, and remanded for the evidence of the owners of the property.

CAUTION TO CARMEN.—Joseph Chuck, a cab man, was brought before the Police Court yesterday morning, on a charge of having assaulted a woman of the town named Catherine M'Carthy, (with whom he had been drinking) because she refused to hire his vehicle. The charge being established against the defendant, he was ordered to pay a fine of 40s. and 7s costs, or to be imprisoned for fourteen days.

THE BOTANY STILL.—The man Holland, who was taken into custody on Saturday last, at Phillips's Farm, Botany, as being one of the parties concerned in working the still then seized, was brought up before the Mayor and Mr. Windeyer at the Police Court yesterday, when it was given in evidence against him, that he was on the premises where the seizure was made, and that he called off the dogs which attacked the seizing officers just before the seizure was effected: also, that he appeared to have control over these animals, and had been working among the materials seized on the premises under the name of wash. There were two counts in the information—the first, which was for 'keeping a still,' was deserted by Mr. Richard Johnson (who conducted the prosecution) at the close of his case. The second count, which charged the defendant with concealing illicit spirits on the premises, was met by Mr. Nichols (who conducted the defence), contending that the charge against his client was supported by circumstantial evidence only, and that of such a description as to leave ground for the bench entertaining a reasonable doubt as to his client's criminality. The charge was dismissed by the Court, on the ground that the prosecutor had not adduced sufficient evidence to make out the charge against the defendant. Costs were afterwards applied for by Mr. Nichols, but Mr. Windeyer refused the application, on the ground that the bench, by dismissing the case, had merely returned a Scotch verdict of "not proved."

IMPORTANT TO HIRED SERVANTS.—Christopher Mooney, a hired servant in the employ of Patrick Casey, under a verbal agreement to give a week's notice of quitting his service, was brought before the Police Court yesterday, for having left the said service without giving the week's notice mutually agreed on. During the hearing of this case the defendant was very flippant, not only to the complainant while the latter was in the witness-box, but also to the Court. Having no defence to offer, he was ordered to be imprisoned for two calendar months; and, at the request of the complainant, the agreement was ordered to be cancelled.

KIAMA, ILLAWARRA.—The Court of Petty Sessions at Kiama, Illawarra, has appointed Mr. David Lindsay Waugh, to be Registrar, and Mr. John Doyle, to be bailiff, of that Court.

PICTON.—SPIRITS.—His Excellency the Governor has directed it to be notified, that he has been pleased to declare the town of Picton to come within the operation of the second clause of the Act 2 Vict, No. 18, so as to constitute it a place at which spirits may be sold in quantities not less than two gallons.

SYDNEY MARKETS.—FRIDAY.

WHEAT.—We have received an average supply during the week, fifty loads having paid dues at the Corn Market, and the prices ranged from 4s. to 5s. 3d.

FLOUR.—This article is firm at £13 per ton, cash, and the millers refuse to sell in large quantities.

BRAN.—Wholesale, 10d. per bushel; retail, 11d. per bushel.

BISCUIT.—No. 1, cabin, 19s. per cwt.; No. 2, ship, 16s. per cwt.

MAIZE.—There is still a large supply of inferior maize in the market, for which the dealers are giving from 2s to 2s. 3d. per bushel, and are paying from 2s. 7d. to 2s. 9d. for good sound maize, which they are mixing up with their old stock, and the inferior maize, and selling retail at from 3s. to 3s. 6d. per bushel.

OATS AND BARLEY remain as last reported. The holders expect a rise for both these sorts of grain, for seed.

HAY.—About one hundred and twenty loads have passed through the Campbell-street market during the week; the prices given ranged from 3s. 6d. to 4s. 9d. per cwt. The market price of average hay is about £4 4s. per ton.

STRAW.—Forty loads have been received during the week; the prices given have been from 2s. 6d. to 3s. 3d. per cwt.

GREEN BEDDING.—Ten loads paid dues at the Campbell-street market, and realised from 3s. 6d. to 4s. 9d. per load.

FRUIT.—Eighty loads have paid dues to the lessee of the George-street market, during the week; the prices and sorts remain as last quoted.

VEGETABLES.—Forty-six loads have paid dues. There is no alteration in the price of any of the articles except colonial potatoes, for which the agents find it difficult to obtain £3 per ton.

DAIRY PRODUCE.—The retail prices of butter, bacon, ham, and cheese are as last quoted. About seventeen cwt. of butter was sold to the dealers during the week at from 10½d. to 11½d. per lb. Four cwt. of bacon realised 7d. per lb.; and about four tons of cheese fetched from 3½d. to 4½d. per lb.

CATTLE, &c.—Since the week began, the carcass butchers have given from 48s. to 60s. per head for cattle. The average price for marketable fat beasts is estimated as being about 52s. 6d. per head. The prices given for fat sheep range from 5s. 6d. to 7s. 3d. per head; one lot of very inferior old ewes was sold at 2s. 6d. per head. 100 sheep, in fair condition, were sold at the Pound, Campbell street, in lots to suit purchasers, and readily realized from 6s. to 6s. 6d. per head. Fifty horses were disposed of at the same place, at prices ranging from £6 to £15 10s. per head; a good carriage horse is reckoned at £14. Forty head of fat pigs were sold to the pork butchers at from 4d. to 4½d. per lb. on the weight of the four quarters.

The prices of butchers' meat have undergone no change since the month began.

There is no business doing in the timber or coal markets worth reporting.

ORIGINAL CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—I have to request that you will rectify the following error, which has crept into your report of the Floral Show on Wednesday last. You state the weight of two plants of sugar beet exhibited by me, and grown with bone dust, to be 9 lb. 8 oz., and that grown with guano as 3½ lb. The weights should be—sugar beet, with bone dust, 6 lb. 8 oz.; ditto, with guano, 3 lb. 4 oz.

I remain, gentlemen, your obedient servant,

BEES.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—I have felt very much interested by the weighty questions, as yet unresolved, raised by Sic Vos non Vobis and Philo-mel. As the latter has undertaken to pour a flood of legal learning on the case, perhaps he may thank me for suggesting, as worthy his consideration, whether Sic Vos non Vobis has not, in the first place, either been guilty (by hiving the swarm) of harbouring some persons runaway servants, and consequently become amenable to the Master and Servants Act, clause —; or, in the second place entered thereby into a contract for work and labour to be done during the "shining hours" of the season to the extent of fifteen cubic inches (or whatever may be the size of the hive) of combs and honey, which combs and honey become the property of Sic Vos non Vobis, on payment of the usual hyre of the workers, much the same as it is done in whaling voyages; or else of wages, according to the usual rate current in the wax and honey trade.

Herein I have assumed that the bees are neither feræ naturæ nor game, but domesticated property and chattels. But I own that, as swift and ferocious creatures which cannot be confined by fences and boundaries, they do not well answer the description of tame animals which is given in the books. Perhaps it were best to treat them as fish, which have no ear-mark, and are the property of the owner of the pool in which they are found, ratione soli. This is to be sure only an analogy, for they are not fish, but I do not see any more strict and direct reasoning that will apply. I trust that Philo-mel will pursue, and make known the result of his enquiries, and allay a very general anxiety as soon as he has carefully consulted all the authorities.

HYDROMEL.

With respect to the explanation offered by an English Bee-master, it is evident that he, and those whom I have heard express themselves satisfied with his letter as a very sensible one, are persons who undervalue learning and legal acumen, and judge of things by vulgar usages, and what the schoolmen call the sensus communis. This is sufficiently indicated by the manner in which his communication is subscribed. An English Bee-master!—why not adopt a Latin or Greek designation like other people of education? But those people affect plainness.

THE STREETS.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—I should be glad to know the opinions entertained, after due consideration, by experienced persons, of the manner at present in use, compared with that which prevailed a quarter of a century ago, of constructing carriageways or causeways in towns. The substitution of macadamization in our streets may be granted to be an improvement on what we were formerly accustomed to as the introduction of that system generally on the roads of the old country twenty or thirty years since is now generally acknowledged to have been. But it has always appeared to me, as a man who walks a-foot, that the adoption of that system, in lieu of paving with square stones of hard texture, in the towns, was a sad misapplication, and nothing but the creation of a nuisance. I am aware that there are other important interests involved in the question than those of the pedestrians, as for example, those of the dwellers in streets, to whom the greater noise formerly experienced may have been objectionable—the drayman, whose occupation can now be more smoothly and economically pursued—and the respectable gentleman who derives similar benefits of tranquillity while driving his gig. But, on the other hand, there is great injury from dust to shopkeepers' wares, there is a continual insinuation of sandy particles into parlours, through the various little apertures under doors and about windows, and in this city particularly, where no sufficient arrangement seems possible for watering the streets, there is almost always a cloud of dust flying along, which has made the city a by-word for unpleasantness to all country people. I therefore suggest that it is worth the attention of the proper authorities, to ascertain the amount of objections and advantages, in the estimation of different classes, which attend the two different systems of paving and macadamization; and as the former will require a peculiarly hard description of stone, I beg to say that there is plenty of the proper sort (as I am informed, for I have as little personal knowledge as interest in that fact) in the neighbourhood of Parramatta.

Your humble servant,

DRYASDUST.

THE CAUSES OF DECLINE IN OUR SPERM WHALE FISHERIES.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—In your paper a short time ago, after setting forth the fact, and partly the period, at which the decline of our fisheries took place, you ask for information upon the subject. I beg to offer the following, as in my opinion being some of the causes which have led to the gradual decline of the English and Colonial fisheries, more especially the sperm whale fishery, (the black whale fishery, as now carried on, being almost a new trade,) and tending to advance the American prosperity in the same,—calling even at our own doors; and with your permission we will examine the English trade first.

The trade had its origin in the first bubble company, upon a large scale!—the South Sea Company! who represented to the Government the vast importance of the trade in prosecuting the discoveries then going on in the searching out of that Eldorado which the whole nation at that time so much longed after, and that it would be an admirable field "for keeping up that spirit of enterprise and daring" which is so essential to the character of British seamen; also, that it would be a vast nursery for making seamen for the navy. Thus were the Government induced to give a bounty for its encouragement. The bounty system has long ceased, and the trade, after prospering for a time, has become a sickly, deformed, unprofitable bantling, and it has scarcely the credit of producing one thorough seaman. Under the prospect of receiving the bounty, some of the finest ships in England were fitted out, and no expense was spared to provide against every casualty, and the speculation soon became profitable, (in some degree by the frauds practised upon the Government). In this stage, men with large capital, partaking of the mania of the times, entered into the speculation in competition with the falling Company, and vied with each other in sending out the finest and most costly ships, (the masters of that day being also a superior class of men;) thus grew up the habit of expensive ships and outfits, which was not felt by the owners so long as the bounty system continued, nor for a long time after its discontinuance, owing to the vast and daily increase in our various manufactures. Keeping up a greater demand than the supply, thus causing enormously high prices to be given for sperm oil, until at length the introduction of gas, and the great competition of foreigners in manufactures, substitutes were sought after, and of a cheaper kind. Gallipoli oil, lard oil, and fat oil, and various other substitutes were introduced, which almost made the manufacturer independent of the fisheries, and prices fell accordingly; and then it came to be felt by the ship-owner, that to produce oil at the ruinously low prices was impossible with the then expensive ships, and various expedients were resorted to, to reduce the cost of the ship and outfit; and heavy complaints were heard if the ship's husband did not fit out his ship as cheap, or even at a lower rate than his neighbour. It was thought that it was unnecessary, if not altogether useless, that the master should be a man of any superior attainments; it was even argued that the man who had no other quality than being able to kill a whale best, was the most desirable, and that he would be cheaper; and as in general, the ship was well insured, it was a matter of secondary consideration if she were to be lost: and upon these mistaken notions were men who could not even read or write sometimes placed in command of some of the finest ships in the world! with some apprentice or landsman to navigate them; (the writer is aware that there are many honorable exceptions to this rule, both in owners and masters.) In this way the ship was sent to sea, with Jack as good as his master, to cruise for three years, in a sea the most perilous, notwithstanding its pacific character. The desire to reduce the expenses of the ship led to the curtailment of every possible thing, and more especially to the provisioning the ship. (These remarks also apply to the colony.) The quantities were the shortest possible, and the qualities never (as in the navy) the very best; notwithstanding these disadvantages some good voyages were made, viz., 100 barrels per month; but the voyages gradually became longer, thus reducing the profits, whilst new competition arose, not only in the home market, by the introduction of foreign caught oil, notwithstanding the almost prohibitory duty; but upon the very source of the supply, first by colonial ships and then by Americans, which competition has gone on to increase, until the Americans literally swarm in the South Seas, and at our own doors, and are, it is said, fishing at a profit. We shall presently enquire how this can be, but in the mean time let us see what is the effect of the measures described above, upon our ships, where, as before stated, Jack is as good as his master, and where a very large portion of the men is composed of the most reckless and disorderly characters of all trades. The mere increase of ships renders the taking of the whale a much more difficult and precarious undertaking than formerly, for it is well known that whales are like animals or birds, and become exceedingly shy and wild when much harassed (the sagacity of the whale being much greater than that of the horse); these numerous ships then, with the shyness of the fish, makes it apparent that the master should be a thinking man, that he may enquire of himself thus—what are the peculiar habits of the fish?—what their mode of feeding?—where is their food found?—what brings the food there?—and at what season is it to be found there? &c., &c.—if I could find a place by myself, the fish would be quiet, and as easily taken as formerly. The writer of this article has no confidence in the belief that whales are any more scarce than formerly, as on one occasion he saw as many whales at one time as covered the sea as far as the eye could see from the mast head, and at a very moderate calculation the ordinary increase of this congregation of schools would vastly more than supply annually all that are caught in all parts of the world, within the same time, even supposing that there were no other whales in existence but what the writer saw. The reason why these fish had so congregated was as obvious as possible; the monsoon had recently changed, and a strong current swept a long line of coast, finding an outlet chiefly through a strait, carrying with it immense quantities of the food of the whale, viz., the squid, a large inanimate gelatinous fish, which when exerting itself to the utmost could only escape from the stream to the eddies, and in one of these eddies the whales were seen. Having thus digressed, let us go back to the ship with her illiterate master, with bad luck, reckless crew, and plenty of rum—what are the consequences to a ship thus sent to sea? The master having no resources within himself, the weary time hangs heavily upon him, and he too frequently takes to the bottle to drown his cares; the already scanty allowance of provisions is reduced, to endeavour to eke out enough to prolong the voyage, equal to the loss of time; the before reckless crew now become more careless, the master drinks the deeper, and often keeps the seamen without—rows ensue, the men see whales and will not report them, time wears on without fish, and of course without one brightening prospect either to the master or the crew; a general despondency pervades the whole ship, sickness and scurvy make their appearance—till the crew, in a state of insubordination or mutiny, demand to be taken to some island to refresh; the ship after much risk and bungling is brought to an anchor, the crew deserts! and a scene of confusion and mishaps ensue, that sometimes ends in the loss of the ship and all hands remaining by her; and if she escape this disaster, it is only to arrive home with the ship and everything in the most deplorable state, with half a cargo, for the anxious but ruined owner to compete against cheap foreign caught oil and foreign substitutes—the owner altogether overlooking the share he has had in forwarding his own ruin by the system thus exposed; one after another they have become disgusted with the trade, and the capital heretofore employed finds vent in some other channel; all the time American increases, perseveres, and prospers, to the great advantage of himself and his country; at length comes the death-blow to English whaling—the duty on foreign caught oil is taken off, and the market is inundated by cheap and foreign oil—to our great loss as a nation and as individuals.

Let us now speak of colonial ships at the time when sperm oil was much in demand, and high prices were given; two or three small old vessels were fitted out in these colonies, at a very heavy expense, their whole material being inferior in every respect, the crew made up of the very worst characters—the officers, with the exception of one in each vessel, had had but little or no experience, and thus was the vessel sent to sea to create a new trade for the colonies, afford profitable employment for capital, and successfully to compete with the English whaler; and so abundant in number and superior in quality were the whales upon this coast and neighbourhood, and not having been disturbed, so quiet were they, that those employed could almost pick and choose among them, so that that unseemly looking thing, a colonial whaler, succeeded beyond the owner's most sanguine expectations, and large sums of money were realized by one or two individuals, and so long as the high prices were kept up, this old expensive and unsightly thing, a colonial whaler, continued to increase and prosper, and those employed in it became more and more expert; the great success of the colonial whalers soon brought the English ships on the coast, and if any of them invariably touched at any of our ports, every inducement was used to entice both men and officers to desert, (men deserted from merchantmen to the masters' great annoyance,) at whatever cost, to join the gambling speculation of whaling; the trade increased amazingly, but still the old vessel and bad material—at length ships from England came out, fitted to sail from the colonies, but the moment she entered the heads the whole crew were insecure, and the voyage rendered doubtful. The trade notwithstanding this disadvantage had now reached a position to almost equal our export of wool at that period, when, in consequence of the manufacturer having found a cheaper substitute, down went the price of oil; and from that time may be dated the decline of colonial whaling.

The English ships sailing out of the colony, and colonial whalers, had become so numerous, and a few straggling American ships began to make their appearance in our neighbourhood, that the whales became as shy here as elsewhere, and the old ships and inexperienced and motley crews, could no longer contend against the untiring energies of the new comers, the owners and crews of which had a prospect of gain before them continually to cheer them onwards; whilst the contrary was the case, in most instances, of colonial whaling. Occasionally an extraordinary voyage was made, which for a time upheld the expiring energies of both owners and crews, and entrapped some new gambler into the trade, frequently as a forlorn-hope, without sufficient means to successfully carry out the object; hence the whole ship and all connected with her underwent the operation of the economical screw press, to the already too apparent, but by these and other means certain, destruction of the voyage. It is a rare case for a colonial whaler to have more than two good headsmen, and often only one, thus upsetting the visionary calculation of the owner that his ship will secure 100 barrels per month, worth £80 per ton in the colony; a source of great dissatisfaction prevails often when the crew arrive as to the price for the oil that they are to be paid at, and some unfair advantages are occasionally taken of them in this respect. The colonial ship is as much too inferior for success as the English ship is too costly for success, and for the competition with their cheap opponents.

The causes of success and profitableness in the American whaler are various; the first is, that their cost is about one half! of the English whaler of the same stowage, as we shall presently see, thus greatly reducing the interest of money and the amount of insurance paid! beside the advantage of the man of smaller means, (one half) can efficiently fit out a ship, and such men have generally more industry and enterprise, and as against the colonial whaler the interest of money is doubly felt in favour of the American; and the smaller cost of the American, being in fact little more than two-thirds of the colonial vessel, is also much against us, and in favour of the American; besides the colonial whaler is not to be compared with the American for suitableness; the Americans are generally smart vessels on their heels, and the whole material of ship and stores much better than the colonial, and no grog? Their crews, with a few exceptions of perhaps a New York ship, and these are dark exceptions, are superior in every point of view to the colonial, or even the English ship's crews, except one, and that is seamanship; in this the Americans are inferior to the colonial, and vastly inferior to the English crews. The Americans have often a large number of greenhorns. You ask then how is it that whaling is so prosperous with them? The answer is that the crews are all more or less men of character; their whole families have been probably resident in Nantucket or New Bedford for generations, they are all known to each other, and have (though scanty enough) some education, and a great deal of general information; they have undergone a considerable amount of moral training, and feel that they have a character to loose; if they behave badly they would not get employed again; the whole village would know of it; there is, in fact, a feeling of self-respect which sustains them, and they are bound together by the ties of friendship, emulating each other as in boyhood; besides, it is no disgrace to sail in a temperance ship, but is considered a credit; and lastly, a clumsy and awkward fellow who misses a large whale, not only losses his chance of promotion, but it is said he loses his sweet-heart also. When he arrives home, he is greeted by his family and friends, who administer to him all the comforts which are so necessary after a long and debilitating voyage; his associations are renewed; he is invigorated and refreshed for a new undertaking. Compare this with the English sailor arrived at the port of London, or the colonial whaler arriving in Sydney—where he is at once cast adrift into the streets, having no mother nor sisters to care for him, and he seeks for enjoyment in those purlieus of filth and disease so common in sea-port towns. At length his money is gone, the system debilitated, and in this state he is shipped off by some pimp, and by grog and fair promises, is induced to leave his advances behind him, and in some cases a monthly note to pay off a real or imaginary debt; he is thus launched to sea again frequently wanting necessary clothing, and minus all small stores, and in this unprepared state falls a prey to scurvy, sometimes in four or five months, to the great injury, if not certain destruction, of the voyage.

Let us now view the English, American, or colonial ship, arrived in Sydney harbour to correct abuses, to refresh, or to end the voyage, and it will be found that the law is insufficient to meet the cases that are bought before it, and that it is totally inapplicable for colonial purposes; the sailor is dissatisfied, the master is unsupported and disheartened, and he sails again, disgusted with his calling, and abusing the country, with this only hope—that the bad characters he has got from some other ship may not be so bad as those he has left behind him,—is it to be wondered at, that he often fails?

Let us see the comparative cost of ship and outfit in England, the colony, and America, (the French and Dutch have scarcely a standing yet). You will please to bear in mind that the calculations are entirely from memory, the writer's books, in which those things are minutely calculated, not being accessible just now. The most useful size for a whaler, in the present state of the fisheries, is from 300 to 400 tons measurement: vessels of less tonnage have not sufficient deck room.

The probable cost of an English whaler of 350 tons, with an outfit for three years, is £12,000, carrying 2500 barrels of oil, equal to £4 12s. per barrel, with interest at four per cent.

The probable cost of a colonial whaler of 350 tons, fitted for two years, is £6500, carrying the same 2500 barrels, equal to £2 4s. per barrel, with interest at 10 per cent., the chief difference in the cost being in the first purchase of the ship, and one year less outfit.

The probable cost of an American ship of 350 tons, fitted for two and a-half years, 18,000 dollars or £4500, carries the same 2500 barrels, equal to £2 16s. per barrel, with interest at six per cent. Now, presuming that the lays or wages in each country are about the same (the mere cost of taking will not affect the calculation) it will be seen that the English ship has one year longer to insure than the colonial ship, and six months longer to insure than the American, and sometimes pays a higher rate than the American, upon nearly double the amount of capital.

Now let us compare the rate of fishing for each country. Some time ago the writer took considerable pains to ascertain the monthly rate of the three countries, for a period of about three years, by actual enquiries amongst the ships, and found the proportionate fishing to be for the English ship, deducting his passage out and home, 50 barrels per month; for the colonial.......... 52 ,, ,, for the American .... 55 ,, ,, deducting his passages. Since that period it is probable that the monthly average has fallen to 40 barrels or below it, for sperm oil; owing to the great increase of the number of American ships fishing on the same ground, the price continues to fall.

I have thus endeavoured to lay before the public some of the chief causes of the decline in our sperm whale fisheries.

I am, gentlemen, your obedient servant,

CACHALOT.

EXTRACTS.

TAKING A NEWSPAPER.

(From an American Publication.)

"PLEASANT day this, neighbour Gaskill," said one farmer to another, coming into the barn of the latter, who was engaged in separating the chaff from the wheat crop, by means of a fan.

"Very fine day, friend Alton. Any news?" retured the individual addressed.

"Nothing of importance; I have called over to see if you wouldn't join Carpenter and myself in taking the paper this year. The price is only two dollars."

"Nothing cheap that you don't want," returned Gaskill, in a positive tone. "I don't believe in newspapers; I never heard of one doing any good. If an old stray one happens to get into our house my gals are crazy after it, and nothing can be got out of them until its read through. They would not be good for a cent. if a paper came every week; and, besides, dollars aint picked up in every cornhill."

"But think, neighbour Gaskill, how much information your gals would get if they had a fresh newspaper every week, filled with all the latest intelligence. The time they would spend in reading would be nothing to what they would gain."

"And what would they gain, I wonder? Get their heads filled with nonsensical stories. Look at Sally Black; isn't she a fine specimen of one of your newspaper reading gals? Not worth to her father three pumpkin seeds. I remember well enough when she was one of the most promising bodies about here. But her father was fool enough to take a newspaper. Any one could see a change in Sally. She began to spruce up, and to look smart. First came a bow on her Sunday bonnet, and then gloves to go to meeting. After that she must be sent to school again; and that at the very time when she began to be worth something about house. And now she has got a forty-piano, and a fellow comes every week to teach her music."

"Then you won't join us, neighbour?" Mr. Alton said, avoiding a useless reply to Gaskill.

"Oh no—that I wont. Money thrown away on newspapers is worse than wasted. I never heard of their doing any good. The time spent in reading a newspaper every week would be enough to raise a hundred bushels of potatoes. Your newspaper, in my opinion, is a dear bargain at any price?"

Mr. Alton changed the subject, and soon left Gaskill to his own fancies.

About three months afterwards, however, they again met, as they had frequently done during the intermediate time.

"Have you sold your wheat yet?" asked Mr. Alton.

"Yes, I sold it day before yesterday."

"How much did you get for it?"

"Eighty five."

"No more! Why I thought every one knew that the price had advanced to ninety-five cents. To whom did you sell?"

"To Wakeful, the storekeeper in K——. He met me day before yesterday, and asked me if I had sold my crop yet, I said I had not. He then offered to take it at eighty-five cents, the market price; and I said he might as well have it, as there was doubtless little chance of its rising. Yesterday he sent over the waggons, and took it away."

"This was hardly fair in Wakeful. He came to me also and offered to buy my crop at eighty-five. But I had just received my newspaper, in which I saw, that in consequence of accounts from Europe of a short crop, grain had gone up. I asked him ninety-five, which, after some haggling, he consented to give."

"Did he pay you ninety-five cents?" exclaimed Gaskill, in surprise and chagrin.

"He certainly did."

"Too bad!—too bad! No better than downright cheating to take such shameful advantage of a man's ignorance."

"Certainly Wakeful cannot be justified in his conduct," replied Mr. Alton. "It is not right for one man to take advantage of another man's ignorance, and get his goods for less than they are worth. But does not any man deserve thus to suffer who remains wholly ignorant in a world where he knows there are always enough ready to avail themselves of his ignorance? Had you been willing to expend two dollars for the use of a newspaper for a whole year, you would have saved in the single item of your wheat crop alone fourteen dollars! Just think of that! Mr. Wakeful takes the newspapers, and, by watching them closely, is always prepared to make good bargains with some half-dozen others around here who have not wit enough to provide themselves with the only sure avenue of information on all subjects—the newspaper."

"Have you sold your potatoes?" asked Gaskill, with some concern in his voice.

"Oh, no! not yet. Wakeful has been making me offers for the last ten days. But from the prices they are bringing in Philadelphia, I am well satisfied they are worth about thirty cents here."

"About thirty! Why, I sold to Wakeful for about twenty-six cents."

"A great dunce you were, I must speak so plainly. He offered me twenty-nine cents for four hundred bushels, but I declined; and I was right. They are worth thirty, and at that price I am going to sell."

"Isn't it too bad?" ejaculated the mortified farmer, walking backwards and forwards impatiently. "There are twenty-five dollars literally sunk into the sea—that Wakeful has cheated me most outrageously."

"And all because you were too close to take a newspaper. I should call that saving at the spigot and letting out at the bung-hole, neighbour Gaskill."

"I should think it was indeed. This very day I'll send off money for a paper, and if any one gets a-head of me again he'll have to be wide awake, I can tell him."

"Have you heard of Sally Black?" asked Mr. Alton, after a brief silence.

"No; what of her?"

"She leaves home to-morrow, and goes to K——"

"Indeed! What for?"

"Her father takes the newspaper, you know?"

"Yes."

"And has given her a good education."

"So they say; but I could never see that it has done any good for her, except to make her good for nothing."

"Not quite so bad as that, friend Gaskill. But to proceed. Two weeks ago Mr. Black saw an advertisement in the paper for a young lady to teach music, and some other branches, in the seminary at R——. He showed it to Sally, and she asked him to ride over and see about it. He did so, and then returned for Sally and went back again. The trustees of the seminary like her very much, and engaged her at a salary of four hunred pdollars a year. To-morrow she goes to take charge of her classes."

"You cannot surely be in earnest?" Farmer Gaskill said, with a look of profound astonishment.

"It's every word true;" replied Mr. Alton, "and now you will hardly say that a 'newspaper is dear at any price,' or that the reading of them has spoiled Sally Black?"

Gaskill looked upon the ground for some minutes. Then raising his head, he half ejaculated with a sigh, "If I haven't been a confounded fool, I came plaguey near it; but I will be a fool no longer; I'll subscribe for a newspaper to-morrow—see if I don't."

FANATICISM IN RELIGION.—A man must be very bold who can look upon the present activity of fanaticism in this country, and express his decided conviction that no serious evil is to be apprehended from it. To me, I confess it appears an object of the most serious and rational alarm. I see no characteristic of danger which it wants; it is subtle, rapid, secret, seductive, and utterly inexpugnable by reason and argument. It breaks out, not here, where there is reason and education to restrain it; but it begins in poverty, in darkness, and in disease, working its way upwards, and poisoning everything that is good and happy in our nature. As it ascends it takes all sweetness and comfort out of religion, and makes earth a hell. God a tyrant, and man a wretch. It is a dismal thing to see the fair works of Nature marred; it is not pleasant to look even at a fading flower or a blighted plant; but of all wretched spectacles the most wretched is to behold a mind blighted by fanaticism,—suspecting its reason, suspecting its happiness, panting for misery,—seeking for safety in tears and in sadness,—believing that man will be cruelly judged for every gleam of happiness which shoots across his mind and gilds his existence with its passing splendour. It is impossible to describe the gloom and the misery which fanaticism is everywhere producing, or the degradation of human reason and the destruction of comfort by which its course is marked. And the grievous misfortune is, that there is no remedy. What answer can be made to a mistaken enthusiast, who refers you to his impulses and feelings? In what way is it possible to illumine an understanding which suppeses religion not to consist in what you do, but in what you believe; not in performing the Divine commandment, but merely in admitting it to be divine, though you disobey it? One perceptible consequence of these mischievous doctrines is, an increasing cry against morality and moral doctrines; so that it almost requires an apology from any teacher of religion if he wishes to enforce anything useful and practical from the pulpit. We might suppose, from such notions of the Christian faith, that Christianity was a set of speculative disquisitions, where, if a man only agreed with the barren and useless results, he was left at liberty to follow the devices of his own heart, and to lead what manner of life his fancy or his passions might dictate.—Sydney Smith.

DISCOVERY OF WINE.—Dr. Henderson, in his "History of Ancient and Modern Wines," gives the following account of the discovery of wine, on the authority of a Persian MS:—"The Persian emperor who founded Persepolis, being extremely fond of grapes, put some into a jar to preserve them; tasting them while they were fermenting, he found them so bad that he put them back, and marked poison on the jar. His favourite mistress, from some cause weary of life, drank the liquor, which, the fermentation being at an end, was so pleasant as to reconcile her to life, instead of poisoning her. The king found out what had taken place, and thus wine was discovered."

THE CANADIAN RECEIPT FOR SHERRY-COBBLER.—Let the sun shine at about 80° Fahrenheit. Then take a lump of ice, fix it at the edge of a board, rasp it with a tool made like a drawing knife or carpenter's plane, set face downwards. Collect the raspings—the the fine raspings, mind—in a capacious tumbler. Pour thereon two glasses of good sherry, and a good spoonful of powdered white sugar, with a few small bits, not slices, but bits, of lemon, about as big as a gooseberry. Stir with a wooden macerator. Drink through a tube of macaroni or vermicelli.—Bonnycastle's Canada and the Canadians.

The committee appointed for raising a fund for the widow and family of the late Right Rev. Dr Alexander, Bishop of Jerusalem, have received donations amounting to £3500 and upwards.

G. EVANS,
MANUFACTURER OF SODA WATER AND ÆRATED LEMONADE,
PITT-STREET, SYDNEY,
NEAR THE VICTORIA THEATRE.

THE excellence of Evans's Soda Water (which is manufactured on Schweppe's peculiar principle) consists in the length of time during which it retains its life and pungency after it is poured out, and not (as many erroneously suppose) on the force with which it expels the cork. The latter being the characteristic of the commonest soda water, for the obvious reason that the gas is disengaged, whereas, by Schweppe's process, the carbonic acid does not escape with the cork, but being thoroughly incorporated with the water, remains as a valuable medicinal feature in the manufacture. Evans's Ærated Lemonade, now so extensively used throughout Sydney, possesses all the medicinal properties of the saline draught, combined with a fine lemon flavour, thus rendering it so agreeable and valuable an article in checking nausea, and allaying the oppressive heat and thirst attendant on fever, and all inflammatory diseases.
As a most delicious, cooling, and refreshing summer draught, Evans's Lemonade stands unrivalled, and may be procured at most of the respectable hotels, inns, and other places of refreshment in Sydney, and other parts of New South Wales.

TO BE SOLD,
AN EXCELLENT HEALTHY SHEEP OR CATTLE STATION, WITH OR WITHOUT CATTLE.

THE above Station is situated near to Armidale, New England, and is capable of depasturing 15,000 sheep or 2000 head of cattle, there being an abundance of good grass, and well supplied with water in the driest seasons from four creeks which pass through the ground. There is a good slab house of five rooms on the premises, with an excellent garden attached thereto,—likewis two paddocks, enclosed with a substantial three-railed fence, and now in a state of cultivation; the garden produces excellent vegetables of all kinds, and the ground in the paddocks is capable of producing forty bushels of wheat per acre—also good maize and potatoes, the latter equal to the best Derwent.
There is also on the premises a substantial built stockyard, which cost the owner £40, also a small barn and milking yard.
To persons requiring new stations for stock, the owner can with great confidence recommend the present station as being particularly healthy and convenient, from its proximity to water carriage, being only one hundred miles distant from the Clarence River, where produce can be shipped for Sydney, and is two hundred miles nearer to Sydney than any new station can be formed.
For terms and other particulars, application must be made to Mr. William Adnum, Coppersmith, George-street, Sydney; Mr Walter Rotton, Innkeeper, Patrick's Plains; Mr. Henry Nowland, Muswellbrook; or to the proprietor, Mr. William Nowland, Mooki River, Liverpool Plains.
